What does “Learning Disabilities” mean?

Learning disability is a disorder that affects one's ability to learn normally. It influences the learning process that includes memory, understanding, attention, thinking and learning strategies. In addition; math skills and ability to produce language orally or in writing are affected, mostly reading and writing skills (spelling, written expression, handwriting). Learning disability does not include mental disability, emotional disorder, visual and auditory impairments and multiple disability since such disabilities can be the direct cause of some difficulties suffered. Social or cultural deprivation is excluded, too.

A brief on the Charitable Association for Learning Disabilities:

The Charitable Association for learning disabilities is the first Association in the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia to serve people with learning disabilities and was established in the year 2010 (1431H) in Riyadh region.
